Influential business minds congregate to discuss empowering female leadership in UAE corporate environments

Growing the number of females in leadership positions in the UAE's private sector was the focus of discussion for influential businessmen and women attending a forum held at the University of Wollongong in Dubai (UOWD) recently.

Organised in partnership with Dubai Business Women Council (DBWC), the seminar was part of an on-going series organised to bring a National Research Foundation (NRF) funded study on women's role in the UAE workforce to life in a way which allows men and women from across the region to add their own input to the debate and learn from the women who have so far contributed to the research.

CONNECT: WOMEN AND LEADERSHIP

UOWD-DBWC WOMEN AND LEADERSHIP SEMINAR SERIES

The UOWD-DBWC Women and Leadership Seminar Series was launched in 2015 with a view to making a contribution to the dialogue and debates surrounding gender issues and women in leadership positions in the UAE. The seminar series provides an opportunity for working women to both share and learn from their own (and other's) personal leadership stories and experiences, to learn from key thinkers, researchers and government representatives in the area, and to join the conversation about policy implications.

ABOUT THE NATIONAL RESEARCH FOUNDATION

With grant funding support from the National Research Foundation, the University of Wollongong in Dubai is proud to have teamed up with Dubai Business Woman Council (DBWC) to understand more about the role of women in the UAE workplace and the factors associated with women attaining, and succeeding in, leadership positions. It is hoped that the research will contribute to public policy initiatives aimed to heighten career leadership development opportunities among women in the UAE.

SHARE YOUR SUCCESS

A new breed of entrepreneur is emerging: one that uses business ideas to improve lives. To support the movement, last year Chivas Regal launched The Venture, a competition for these social entrepreneurs, with a $1 million prize fund. The project is inspired by our founding brothers, James and John Chivas, who generously supported their local community for years. Today, their modern counterparts are also finding that sharing their success is when a business becomes truly rewarding. See what The Venture's finalists are bringing to the table at theventure.com.
