Founder and Managing Director of Manelith Consulting. Hazel is a dynamic, creative and performance driven professional with 18 years' experience in leadership positions across multiple business sectors. She is an active advocate for the development and mentorship of women in industry and dedicates her time to the development of youth.

Hazel's executive leadership spans across a broad range of business management disciplines, geographies and stakeholders. Established in 2014, Manelith Consulting has executed mandates in the Hospitality and Tourism, Telecommunications, Public Relations and Communications, Fashion, Entertainment and Education sectors. Hazel's consulting focus has been the development of strategies for efficient and profitable operations, risk management and the development of robust systems and processes for her clients.

Prior to Manelith Consulting, Hazel spent nearing a decade working for J.P. Morgan, a leading global financial institution. She spent 7 years in the EMEA headquarters in London within the Corporate and Investment Bank in strategic and programme management roles. Her initial market coverage was Europe, Middle East and Africa before assuming a global role as a segment CFO. In 2011, she was elected onto a prestigious EMEA banking leadership programme, where she graduated top of her class. This led to her assignment to the Middle East as a Vice President for the Middle East and North Africa Region in 2012, a role she held until 2014.

In addition to her banking career, Hazel spent 9 years working for a leading UK retailer, John Lewis Partnership, where her key role in Organisational Development was to drive a transformational change programme impacting 26 branches and project manage key elements of branch expansion across the U.K.

Hazel has a proven track record for managing key relationships, large budgets, diverse teams, top-tier clients and broad stakeholders. She holds tertiary qualifications in Economics and Social Policy from the University of London and in HR Development and Strategy from the University of Westminster.
