

Julie Shehata Morgan

Managing Director
Limitless Consulting

I worked for the British Council in a worldwide capacity for nearly 20 years in the role of teacher, resources officer, business development manager and finally a regional role covering the Middle East & Northern Africa. I am a highly skilled and respected trainer, writing, promoting and delivering programmes – from simple English within the workplace to full management degree qualifications. I enjoy mentoring participants, whilst sensitively handling advice and guidance across a broad level of experience. I am also an experienced Assessor and Internal Verifier in a wide variety of areas from Customer Service to high level Management & Leadership training. In addition I design, implement and quality assure literacy and numeracy programmes including training assessors and delivering group and one to one training.

I trained with a leading women's development consultancy in the UK (Springboard) and since joining Limitless Consulting have worked to develop relevant and enlightening women's development training. I balance being part of a successful business with being a wife and mother and appreciate what a challenge this can be sometimes. My passion is helping others recognise the skills and knowledge they have, I believe this is the first step to defining and living limitless lives.

www.limitlessconsulting.co.uk

Alison Burgess

Business Partner
Limitless Consulting

30 years of varied and challenging experiences have resulted in a unique and eclectic view on managing and improving performance. I had an early career as an economist and auditor which helps me appreciate and apply a logical approach to problem solving and goal achievement.

In the early 90's I found my passion for Learning and Development, working as a manager and consultant in a variety of European businesses. I have worked for companies in the Financial, Technology, FMCG, Professional Services and Charity sectors as a consultant, trainer and business partner.

I am an INLPTA qualified NLP Master Practitioner, and have additional qualifications in the areas of Coaching, Facilitation and Hypnotherapy. I set up Limitless Consulting in 2006 to design and deliver innovative and pragmatic personal and management development training that really made a difference to the lives of those who attend.

I am also heavily involved with local charities including volunteering as a trustee for my local cancer support centre. I understand the pressures that these organisations are under, striving to be commercially successful without losing the values and culture that make them who are. Whether I am working for a highly successful blue chip company or a start up charity my goal is to work with others to create centres of excellence for people management and development for the benefit of the individual, organisation and community.

www.limitlessconsulting.co.uk