A man and a woman are sitting in a modern, brightly lit living room. The woman is on the left, wearing a light-colored top and dark pants, holding a tablet. The man is on the right, wearing a light-colored shirt and dark pants, also looking at the tablet. They are sitting on a wooden bench or low table. In the background, there is a large window with a view of a city, a framed picture on the wall, and some potted plants. The overall atmosphere is calm and collaborative.

Why now?

- ! The pandemic has uprooted our world, having nudged us to take action to better how our society has been functioning & in certain instances introduce new models & technologies to revolutionize the way we live. People all over the globe are now openly questioning the economic systems that have been in play over the past century. Everything from macro-economic levers to government involvement in data ownership to employment benefits and what it means to live a fulfilled life are being challenged. We believe, with awareness of new power technologies like blockchain and understanding wealth management using tokens and crypto, we can all play a part in building a new economic engine.

What is Unit?

- Unit is a new economic engine. It is a pioneer in creating a human-centric technology built for the future thinking communities, to start making positive change to the way economies run, by acting today. It enables the evolution of industry, city and country economies into fairer economic models driven by tokenomics, the stakeholder economy and decentralized governance. We dream of a world where everyone can do meaningful work they enjoy and can manage & create wealth with ease. And we're in it for the long haul, with the aim to impact billions positively, not single-handedly, but together.

Join the ride.
