Recognizing what Mentoring is and is not

DBWC Mentoring Program is...

A Development tool – It is a development activity that builds knowledge, networks, businesses and careers. The process allows more experienced members to support and develop other members

A Knowledge Sharing Opportunity – It is a process that improves cross-functional knowledge sharing and facilitates the flow of information and ideas throughout the council platform

An Initiative that will help Improve understanding of the business culture – can help participants better understand the business operations, policies, and culture across various industries

DBWC Mentoring Program is not...

A Guarantee – A Mentoring relationship provides no guarantee of business promotion or increase in revenues. However, both parties may develop knowledge, competencies and skills that improve overall progress

A Replacement for Formal Development – Mentoring cannot take the place of formal training, but rather should enhance formal development activities

A Member Assistance Program – Mentoring is not a member assistance program that provides participants with counseling on personal issues
